I have some 1cm x 1cm squared paper.

1. Suppose you draw a triangle whose vertices are at the grid points. Prove that the area of the triangle is either a whole number of cm²'s, or it is (a whole number) plus \( \frac{1}{2} \) cm².

2. Can you construct an equilateral triangle all of whose vertices are at grid points?