In the period between the turn of the twentieth century and the Nazi rise to power, many of the central works of fiction in the German-speaking world meditate on power relationships. In this course we will examine the way in which political power relations are sexualized and sexual power relations are politicized; that is, we will investigate the psychological and emotional underpinnings of a culture brimming with violence.