This small Honors College class has been reading primary sources and thinking about politics and religion in the Roman Empire. Today's class discussion focuses on the role of women in the church.