CONTEMPORARY MARXIST THEORY

This course will provide an overview of 20th-century Marxist, neo-Marxist, and post-Marxist social theory. Among the questions to be addressed are: Does Marxism provide an adequate theoretical foundation for the critique and transformation of capitalist society? What are the critical theoretical alternatives within and beyond Marxism? What are the limitations of Marxism as a theory of human liberation and how have other radical theories addressed these limitations? How does critical social theory inform sociological research and political practice?
